

ABSTRACT

The invention shows the effective input of a target word or phrase by applying a Full Input Method and by using an index storing full code. In addition, this invention proposes an input system for inputting various objects (alphabet characters, special characters, functions, etc) by combination of a long stroke of a button and a short stroke of the button, and by combination of a long stroke of a button and a short stroke of a control button.